

Elizabeth A. Corley is the Lincoln Professor of Policy, Ethics & Emerging Technologies and an Associate Professor in the School of Public Affairs (SPA) at Arizona State University. Her research interests focus on environmental policy and technology policy. She serves as a Co-Principal Investigator for the NSF-funded Center for Nanotechnology in Society at Arizona State University (CNS-ASU). She received three engineering degrees and a Ph.D. in Public Policy from the Georgia Institute of Technology.